Steve Sulikowski aka 16 Frames

Steve Sulikowski is the songwriter and voice behind the band 16 Frames. Signed to J Records by Clive Davis, 16 Frames went on to release their self-titled album to critical acclaim. The songs on the record soon found their way on to multiple TV Shows including MTV's "The Hills", "Private Practice" and "So You Think You Can Dance". The band also toured extensively opening for Sheryl Crow, Crowded House and Pete Dinklage. Steve recently released his follow up EP entitled "Six From 16" which has been featured on the hit show "Jersey Shore". Sulikowski is now writing and producing for other artists, most recently with Selena Gomez co-writing the title track to her album "When The Sun Goes Down".
